January 19, 2016

Dear Friend,

From 2007-2009 our nation suffered one the worst economic recession since the Great Depression. Fortunately, we have come a long way since then, and job creation remains a national priority.

Small businesses are the engines that drive our economy. They are crucial to securing gainful employment and spurring innovation. There are over 20 million small businesses in America, generating about half of our nation’s GDP. The U.S. Small Business Administration estimates that small businesses are responsible for two out of every three new jobs created. In fact, more than half of Americans either own or work for a small business. Growing our District’s small businesses is a key component of sustainable economic recovery.

I’ve put together this guidebook as a resource to assist you in starting or growing your business. From identifying partnerships, opportunities, to finding mentors, this guidebook will walk you through the many small business resources that are at your fingertips. Together we can build a vibrant economy in Illinois’ Second Congressional District, one that is defined by stable, reliable job growth. If you have any further questions, please do not hesitate to contact my office at any time at (202) 225-0773, or visit my website at www.RobinKelly.house.gov.

Sincerely,

Robin L. Kelly
Member of Congress

Thinking of Starting a Business?
Some Things to Consider

Starting a business can be challenging. If you’re thinking about starting a business of your own, there are some things you should consider.

According to the Small Business Administration (SBA), there are certain characteristics that successful business owners usually display:

• Comfort with taking risks
• Independence
• Persuasiveness
• Ability to Negotiate
• Creativity
• Supported by Others

If you’re still unsure, consider contacting the following about mentoring programs:

Funk Linko
Vicky Linko
1633 Fifth Avenue
Chicago Heights, IL 60411

Funk Linko, an advanced steel manufacturing business founded in 1925, is owned and operated by Vicky Linko who inherited the fourth generation family-owned enterprise. Vicky has been working at the Chicago Heights company for about 35 years and has had no formal training in business.

“A lot has changed since I began here,” she said. “The world has changed. In those days you could do a deal for $6 million on a handshake, but today you have to dot your i’s and cross your t’s.”

Despite the challenges and changes Vicky has seen throughout the years, she remains a passionate self-motivator. “I think of my grandkids and the future of the American people, and I don’t want people to lose sight that the American dream is there. I want to be the one that makes it happen.”

Employing 48 people, the company provides high-quality products made with domestic steel, produced by American workers. Funklinko buys all of their materials from local businesses.

It hasn’t always been easy though, Vicky admitted. During the worst of the recession, the company had to lay off workers, going from 32 employees to just six. Fortunately, Funklinko was able to rehire all of them, and more, due in part to two grants made possible through the American Recovery Act.

Vicky was also able to use the money to purchase big robotic welders and computer numerical control (CNC) machines to remain competitive. “We put that money to good use,” Vicky recalled.

Funklinko has stayed competitive in other ways as well. The company has provided their employees with health insurance for over 60 years. Although it can become costly, Vicky highlighted the importance of providing for employees. “Without your supporting cast, you’re nothing,” she said.

“Have the passion. There’s nothing you can’t achieve if you put your mind to it, and if you have a vision.”

When asked what is most rewarding about owning a small business, Vicky replied, “Being able to pull through the tough times and coming out stronger for it.”

If you are looking to start your own business, Vicky has some parting words: “Have the passion. There’s nothing you can’t achieve if you put your mind to it, and if you have a vision.”

“Small businesses,” she added, “are the backbone of America. We have to support them.”
Flavor Restaurant
Rochelle & James Kemp
5091 Sauk Trail Drive
Richton Park, IL 60471

Flavor is a destination restaurant started 11 years ago by Rochelle and James Kemp.

Rochelle Kemp is a “proud product of the Chicago public school system,” and a graduate of Chicago State University where she completed an undergraduate degree in business. Rochelle has worked for many Fortune 500 companies as well, giving her the experience needed to start her own business.

“My ultimate goal in starting the business was to cook some good food and make people happy. I think I’ve accomplished that,” she said. “I love cooking and I love people and I wanted to serve the community.” Rochelle said opening her own business was perhaps the most rewarding thing she has ever done.

Rochelle estimates about 50 percent of the customer base to be local, while the remaining comes from a 40-mile radius.

Despite its evident success, Flavor has seen its share of challenges. “Dealing with a lack of resources can be difficult,” said Rochelle. Flavor is currently unable to offer insurance to its 45 employees.

“I’ve learned that you have to really get out into the community to figure out what resources are available to small businesses,” she said.

What really makes a small business successful though, according to Rochelle, are the relationships built with the customer base. “Interacting with customers keeps me going,” she said.

To aspiring entrepreneurs, Rochelle recommends developing a clear, concise, and comprehensive business plan. “Stick to it,” she said. “Also, be sure to have your template set. Start with your social media in tact... Have everything set to advertise what you are.”

“My ultimate goal was to cook some good food and make people happy. I think I’ve accomplished that...”

Access to Business Opportunities with U.S. Department of the Treasury

The U.S. Department of the Treasury (Treasury) is committed to providing small, minority-owned, and women-owned businesses with contracting opportunities to provide products and services throughout the agency as either prime contractors or subcontractors. Commitment to business diversity starts with its top leadership, as articulated by the Treasury Secretary. It is included in the strategic plan of the Department and progress is monitored by senior management on a regular basis. Additionally, attainment of small business goals is part of the performance objectives of all procurement officials.

In recent years, Treasury has met or exceeded the overall small business contracting statutory goal set by the SBA, as well as all four of the socioeconomic goals for small disadvantaged businesses, women-owned small businesses, Historically Underutilized Business Zones (HUBZone) businesses, and service disabled veteran-owned small businesses. In particular, Treasury’s contract obligations to small disadvantaged businesses and to women-owned small businesses have far exceeded the statutory goals set by Congress.

Access to Business Opportunities with Treasury is designed to assist small, minority, and women-owned business owners to understand how to best market specific products and services and navigate the process of conducting business with Treasury. The information compiled in this guide is intended to facilitate access to business opportunities with Treasury.
